

YSI VIRTUAL PLENARY New Economic Questions

6-15 Nov 2020

Call for Papers & Abstracts

YSI East Asia Working Group

The YSI East Asia Working Group discusses issues regarding economic development in the East Asia region including, but not limited to, the Asian capitalism, institutions, policies, financial markets and sustainability and aims to understand different trajectories of economic growth in the continent. It welcomes the interdisciplinary approach by young scholars pertaining to economic questions of Asia.

Track A | East Asian Economic Challenges

For this track, we welcome work on a wide range of topics, including but not limited to:

1. Financialization & Crises in Asian History
2. History of Asian Central Banks
3. The Great Divergence
4. Migration in Asia
5. Asian Growth & the Rise of India/China
6. Demographic Change
7. Lessons from East Asian Development
8. Climate and Sustainability in East Asia
9. Economic Inequality between the East and the West: The Role of Colonial Rule

Track B | Towards a Social ReConstruction of Economics

The influence of the "social" in economic thinking cannot be underplayed.

Indeed, one may argue that the foundations of economic thinking are rooted in a shared, historical, understanding of the nature of ownership, markets and exchange; and is based on a tacit agreement of Young scholars from around the world are coming together to propel economic thinking forward, and you can join! Submit your work now for a chance to feature in the program!

Deadline for submissions:
15 August 2020

Selected young scholars will get a chance to present and receive feedback from peers and a senior mentor.

How to submit

1. Make sure you're a member of YSI (ysi.ineteconomics.org)
2. Find the two working groups that best suit your interests
3. Submit your work to those groups via the application portal

Note: The submission portal contains separate tracks for finished working papers and early research ideas. Both tracks allow you to select the working groups you'd like to submit to.

Who can submit?

Undergraduate students, master's students, PhD students, early career scholars as well as people doing research work in non-academic positions are invited to submit. You must be a registered member of YSI on ysi.ineteconomics.org to submit.

human behaviour(homo economicus) amongst most economists.

As we speak of multiplicities - histories instead of history, behaviours instead of behaviour; it can also open up different possibilities and assemblages of how we understand economics. This CFP welcomes such engagements which may broadly be (but not limited to) three economic axes. Those of ownership, valuation and currency. In other words, an engagement which what are the particular histories and configurations that have lead to the current models of

1. How we decide who owns
2. What the criteria for deciding economic worth and
3. The mechanisms through which we decide and implement a common denomination for exchange (currency)
4. How these models can be reconfigured and re-imagined.

When submitting work, please indicate which track you are submitting to in the comment section.

Questions concerning this call may be sent to: eastasia@youngscholarsinitiative.org

SUBMIT NOW

Deadline: 15 August

